

Special Privilege

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or legal decree. The text is dense and covers most of the page. It appears to be a grant or privilege issued by a ruler, mentioning various locations and individuals. The script is highly stylized and difficult to read without specialized knowledge of the language and period.

I am writing to you, as I have not had time to write to you before. I am well and hope these few lines will find you the same. I have not much news to write at present, but I thought I would write a few lines to let you know how I am getting on. I am still in the same place, and I am still doing the same work. I am still in the same place, and I am still doing the same work. I am still in the same place, and I am still doing the same work.

I am still in the same place
 and I am still doing the same work.
 I am still in the same place
 and I am still doing the same work.

I am still in the same place
 and I am still doing the same work.

I am still in the same place
 and I am still doing the same work.

I am still in the same place
 and I am still doing the same work.
